Treatment effectiveness and quality of the results using lingual orthodontics

Times are changing, nowadays social networks allow a broadcasting of information at high speed and towards a maximum of individuals.

The orthodontic field follows these new rules of sharing: testimonies of patients and practitioners, "live" experiences of bracket bonding or removal, TADS placement etc...are spreading all over the WEB.

But is quality of orthodontic treatments still a notion of concern and more particularly in lingual orthodontics? Is this tool up to the expectations of our patients and/or practitioners?

After a brief definition of the quality concept in the medical field, the questioning of our patients before considering an orthodontic treatment in lingual technique will be mentioned.

Finally, clinical cases will be displayed to assess the quality of the results using a completely customized lingual appliance.
